You want to play a violent video game
your parents don't know about yet.

Your parents bought a giant mega bag of nacho chips and said you were old enough to decide how many to eat.

Your friends want you to lie for them when the teacher asks if they had their phones on during class.

You really don't like your gym teacher and you suspect she doesn't like you either.

You feel lonely and sad.

Someone said your hair looks weird.

Someone shoved you in a crowded school hallway, maybe on purpose, you can't really tell.

Your grandparents really want to take you to a movie you think is too babyish.

Someone passed you a note that said something mean about your best friend.

Your friend scored the winning basket at a game you had to skip because of the stomach bug.

What to Do:

Make one copy on BLUE cardstock for each older grade small group.
Cut cards apart.
